A: Try moving your game.html code above your index.html. That should fix it. Also, I suggest having what files you need in the directory above your html/php files so that they are already loaded when they are called for. Your code looks pretty robust, but I keep everything at the top of my site's html/php files and have it flow like this: Put your game.html in there with your html/php and just be sure to make your site base always the same: To your wildcard 301 redirect. It doesn't look very wildcarded and would look better if your website were instead of I would suggest creating some kind of subdomain that you use for your website that would match a pretty random game name like newgamer123.example.com and create a redirect like this:

Movie Company Flube Movie Company (Japanese: 　　　　　　　　　) is a Japanese anime studio located in Fujiidera. Founded in 1956 by Kin'ya Okada as Fuji-kyoshin after he acquired the old works of BeTrOn, the Studio was used to produce bebop or lily flowers anime from the 1950s to the mid-1970s. During the early 1970s, Flube produced anime much like other Japanese studios making funny, light hearted, anime featuring high animation quality. History Production After ending his long-running corporation Marusan which he built, Guin Kanai started the company Yasurada Kashima. The first bebop anime produced under this new company was Porco Rosso, a shooting star anime. After seeing the success of this anime and what it could have done for the late 1950s to early 1960s television culture, Kanai decided to apply the same technique to the film industry. This meant exploiting the new Harman-Screen's VTR to be used in Japan since the summer of 1956 by the Harman-Screen company. For Shunzui (Symphony in Blu-ray) in 1957, director Hiroyuki Ishige brought in Fuji-kyoshin and many other old sponsors to create the show and afterwards signed up Asahi Screen Associates as its new owner. The company started working with Asahi Screen after the success of Harman-Screen, making Masaoka Matsumoto supervise the animation of both Anal and Magick Perfection. Working with Kin'ya Okada, this new company produced a series of bebop style anime television series, from 1958 to 1962. These anime shows were popular and successful, raking in many awards, and more important praise and money. The first hit series was Period Piece (Rurūru-kenku-san), a sci-fi fantasy kaiju anime TV show, which became the most expensive anime at that time. Some other popular series included Katanagatari (　　　　　, Dokuro-natsukaze), Chouja (Baka, Manatsu), Houbinkyō (　　　　, Ōkigyō), Han-eman (　　　　　　　　, Faitāensh
